Answer the following questions:

1. What is the sound the 'qu' makes in 'queso' or 'aquí?'
2. What is the sound that the 'g' makes in 'gato' or 'gustar'?
3. What is the sound that the 'll' makes in 'calle' or 'llama'?
4. Héctor just learned that for nouns that end in a consonant, you add 'es' to make it plural. So for the word lápiz, he changes it to lápizes. What's wrong with this? What should it be?

Answers:

1. It sounds like the 'c' in cat or the 'k' in kick.
2. It sounds like the 'g' in goat or bag
3. It sounds like the 'y' in yell or yes
4. We know that in Spanish the 'z' can only be followed by 'a, o, u' (Ex. zumo, zapato, tiza). Therefore, when hector gets lápizes, he should change the 'z' to 'c' and have the proper plural form lápices.
